Our Business

Halliday Fraser Munro is an award winning architecture and planning practice. Founded in 1993, we have a proven record of providing quality architecture which responds to our client's aesthetic, technical and budgetary requirements.

We ensure efficient and cost effective project delivery through a proactive, collaborative approach combined with commercial understanding and responsive management.

We promote a holistic approach to design incorporating architecture, town planning, urban design, visualisation and sector knowledge resulting in a cohesive, efficient delivery process. We have many long term and mutually beneficial business relationships forged through the successful delivery of numerous projects throughout the UK.

We have always understood that the key to providing an exceptional service is to listen carefully to our clients, to have the best people working on their projects and for the final outcome to exceed their original expectations. The practice has an extremely experienced management team who have successfully delivered an extensive range of projects from inception to completion.

Our agile management process allows us to be creative, innovative and flexible without any compromise on delivery and commerciality. We regularly achieve a high level of client satisfaction with over three quarters of our workload coming from repeat commissions.

Sector Experience

Halliday Fraser Munro has delivered some of Scotland's most innovative and inspiring educational buildings. Our many education projects have won a wide range of awards at local and national levels for exhilarating design and architectural excellence. But, more importantly for us, the schools, buildings and campuses we have created, have been rapturously received by the students, teachers and communities they serve. Our experience has taught us the importance of approaching every brief with fresh eyes and listening carefully to everyone who will interact with the building, from the teachers and governors to parents and pupils. And you can see the value of that approach in the refreshing spectrum of designs we have created for schools and campuses across Scotland.

Schools now have a wider role to play than simply providing stimulating environments that inspire young people to achieve their full potential. They are increasingly important as community hubs, providing leisure, lifelong learning and integrated services to the wider population. We are highly experienced in incorporating greater levels of flexibility into educational buildings – blurring boundaries and designing in security hierarchies to facilitate the widest possible range of uses.

We also understand that the success of a building lies, not just in the precise interpretation of each aspect of the client's brief, but in our ability to fully understand the aspirations and concerns of everyone who will use it. Our ability to engage and consult with stakeholders throughout the design process has been a key factor in the success of our projects with students, teachers and the wider community. This highly collaborative approach was one of the reasons that the judges at the Scottish Building Awards selected our Inverurie Campus design as Development of the Year.

Sector Team

Our Education team brings together an exceptional range of experience and expertise. Members of the team have worked throughout the UK, on education projects of every size and at every level, from nursery and early learning to further and higher education. As a result, they are fully conversant with the latest educational thinking and have real insight into the nuances and complexities of the sector.

Our full-service team encompasses every architectural speciality, so we can take your project from start to finish. Right from planning the project's role at the heart of a “20 minute neighbourhood” to detailing the finishes in a classroom and landscaping the grounds. We are also committed to creating a brighter future for students long after they have left school, by setting new standards in sustainability and tackling the climate crisis. Key members of our team have been trained to deliver projects to Passivhaus standards and we firmly believe that educational buildings have a critical role to play in educating everyone about a zero-carbon world.
